What does it mean to live an inspired life?

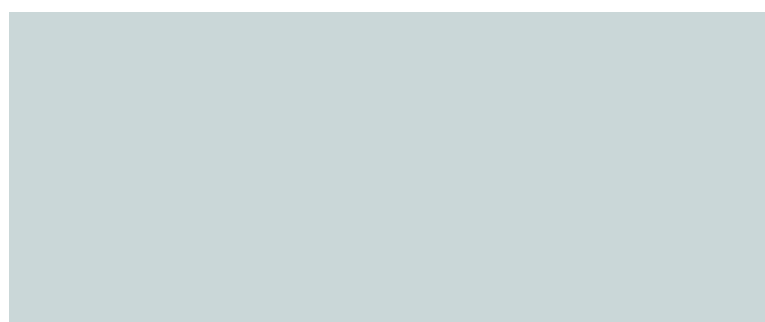

Quite simply, it is questing for the most vivid experiences, capturing moments of heightened awareness, and shaping life around what will create the most thrilling memories. To live in an excited state of readiness is to believe that the wild rush of freedom can be uncovered around every corner. After all, what are dreams, but an invitation to be more alive? Your dreams should be the beauty you wake up to, the happiness you come home to, and the gratitude you go to sleep with. Makes sense, then, to build a dream home to house the dreamer.

Pacific Coast

Standing atop the rugged cliffs that meet the Pacific Ocean, the view goes on forever. Feeling as if you are alone on the edge of the world. Solitary, like the majestic Redwoods behind you. And yet, no one is a stranger here. It feels like home, unlimited possibility is before you, and everyone has that faraway California dream in their eyes. It's a place where you can take off your shoes, and stay awhile. Who knows, you might just stay forever.

Original Heritage

When the light of sunset touches the treetops, the evening forest is at its most enchanted. This is the golden hour when the 200-year-old Hickory tree tells stories to the saplings. Nowhere else will you be enrobed in a softer silence. The flap of a bird wing, the crack of a twig, are both muted by the moss. Here, the bark is steeped in history, and the roots never forget. And neither will you.

Pure Mastery

If you go out walking in the Highlands, wander far enough and you'll be outnumbered by sheep. Folklore takes over in the never-ending rolling green of the hills, playing tricks on you. Gnomes can be found out here, they're friendly, so the locals will tell you. But that, you'll need to find out for yourself. And you will, in good time. Once you settle in, and make the place your own.

Colonial Vintage

To peel old wallpaper off a wall is to exfoliate the skin of a house. Stripping off the coats bares its natural beauty – the grains of the wood show as wrinkles; the knots, moles and freckles. The scratches and cracks are where its soul shines through. Get up close and see it for what is remaining – character; weathered, refined, but still pure.

A piece of wood floats for a long time before earning the title of driftwood. So must barn board spend years in the harsh elements before it weathers to its luxurious patina. And the fallen tree, as it lets the earth reclaim it, wears its lichen with pride. Reclamation is their bragging right. They know it's what makes them more valuable, as do you.

Timeless Impressions

Sound carries louder over water, making a conversation across a hushed lake feel like eavesdropping. And with the sky as the amphitheater, the nature around you becomes the stage. Little waves lap against the shore in an applause, the leaves of a tree rustle as they witness your passing. Nature is all ears. Cry out. If only for the pleasure of hearing the echo of your own voice added to the audience.

Authentic Elegance

Elegance is seen in the line of a ballerina's neck, the mating ritual of swans, and the swaying of tall trees in a breeze. What these things have in common is that none of them are trying to be something they're not. They couldn't fight their nature, even if they tried. Get back to basics: go on a treasure hunt for what's genuine. Authentic elegance is hiding where you least expect it.

Urban Ultimate

In a city of madness, the one who builds an oasis of calm is king. Let the rush be for the masses. You have the skyline, a birds-eye view of the motion down below. From your lofty corner of your metropolitan den, the hustle and bustle seems almost Zenlike: millions of people going about their day, moving as one. It's thrilling, really, this urban pulse. And you wouldn't give that up for all the world.

Natural Prestige

Natural prestige is in the art of understated distinction. Those who blow their own horn are a nuisance to the sophisticated. Some choose to go in for glory and acclaim, others respectfully decline all that pomp and circumstance. Just remember: your reputation precedes you. Put your best foot forward and let your actions speak for themselves.

Studio Essentials

To some, a studio is an undefined space; to others, it is a structural canvas. We can all agree that a studio is a place of creation, perspiration, and inspiration. The resulting masterpiece is a gift to the world and is a true collaboration of skill and talent.

Natural Vintage

You're a complex character, showing the scars of past experiences. Sure, you might be a bit rough around the edges, but at least you took some risks. You're not someone who needs to hold onto the guard rails in this life. Why walk the line, when you could jump off a pier and make a splash? The worst they can say about you, is you're not afraid to get your feet wet and experience life!

Classic Estate

Tasteful and refined. Like your home, a floor should be warm and inviting, encouraging friends to join you for dinner and linger long afterwards. A great floor can trigger stories of origins and triumphs encouraging discussion of places you have been and dreams yet to be realized. Having witnessed history, the stories these floors could tell.
